

On Gettysburg Public School Children. Last Year Record One for Cases of Tardiness, Almost None this Month. The Reason.

The hook worm which held such a complete control of many of the public school children of Gettysburg during the early months of last year's term has almost entirely vanished this year to the great delight of all the teachers.

The number of cases of tardiness which had reached top notch figures last September, October and November has fallen until there are practically no cases at all now in the higher grades and only a few farther down.

This is in part attributed to the fact that during the month of September only one session of school is being held and that from eight in the morning until noon. The scholars get there

Another reason for the new condition is the fact that a vigorous campaign against tardiness was waged last year until the average was greatly reduced and that is now having its effect on this year's attendance.

As a result of the promptness with which the local school children get to work, more effective training is accomplished and the boys and girls are getting the most out of their time.

What do you think of the continuing hatchery? A. The continuous use of a fake. To have success in using incubator eggs they must all be set at once, for different settings interfere with each other. In most cases the eggs are not cooled or dried for three days, and a different use of heat is required each week for different settings and conditions. Health Commissioner Dean Tully of Deaths of Dealers and Employees in Hunting Mill. Says Farmers are Cheating in Their Deeds.

"Don't let me put much blame on the farmers," said State Health Commissioner Dean Tully in discussing the new law now in effect in Pennsylvania which makes it a criminal offense for a dealer to cheat in his dealings with his customers. "The law is a good one, but it is the dealers who are cheating, not the farmers."

"As an old farmer myself who has been in the business for many years, I know that it is the dealers who are cheating, not the farmers. I have seen many dealers who have been cheating their customers for years, and I have seen many farmers who have been honest and fair in their dealings with their customers."

Local People, Far in Number, Attend of Meeting Tents of National Board of Pennsylvania at Recent Encampment.

Trooper Hallister, Smith and Hyde of the State Constabulary on Saturday arrived in Gettysburg to recruit from among the local people. The people of the town of Gettysburg, Pa., are in the habit of attending the meetings of the National Board of Pennsylvania at recent encampment.

On Saturday morning hundreds of the "warth of the town" were recruited, a large portion of it being secured from the camp of a party of local citizens. It is expected that the number will be all returned to the state authorities with protection.

NUGGETS OF GOLD

Some of the Largest Ever Struck

THE OLIVER MARTIN CHURCH

It Was Turned Up by a Miner Who Was Digging a Grave For Him

Unearthed the "Welcome Stranger"?

Nowhere does fortune ladle him more of the dramatic and the emotional more fully than in the gold fields.

Take, for instance, the story of the discovery of the world famous "Blanche Barkley" nugget in the early days of Australian gold mining, when a settler struck a thrill around the world. Sam and Napier, a sailor, with his brother-in-law Charles and one Herbert Ambrose, the town clerk, were out on a dig. The town clerk took and general hand man, had been digging for gold for six months at the Kingwood, about forty miles from Bendigo, without discovering as much as the precious metal as would pay the travelling expenses, when one August day he discovered a nugget of gold weighing 311 1/2 ounces. Napier's own words were "Oh! what a day!"

feet to the pipe clay stratum and was shuffling around in the bottom of the shaft more dead than alive from thirst. Old Ambrose lit his pipe and leaned against the side of the hole and rest. Just then I struck something with my pick. I trowed it up so the light could strike it, and, by goodness, it was a chunk of gold as big as my hind paw!" The nugget sold for $35,000.

Among the thousands who flocked

The Victorian gold fields in the central Andes were two Cornish miners, James Denon and Richard Oates, who staked a claim near the village of Mollagay. They set to work with vigor, confident that in a few months they would be able to retire to their native Cornwall as rich men, but their expectations were doomed to cruel disappointment. In only months, but many years, passed and found them still as far removed

In despair the miner raised his gun and wandered away to the outblowing wind of the gold field, and so he wandered downcast and heavy hearted, he looked a gleam of yellow in a rut made by a maddier cart. I lifted his head with a few frantic blows he brought down an enormous nagget, which, with all his strength, he could barely raise an inch from the ground. The nagget, which was soon known the world over as the "Welcome Stranger," actually weighed two hundredweight and sold for nearly $60,000.

many similar blocks of gold discovered in Australia under equally dramatic conditions. While a native shepherd named Kerr was tending his sheep one day his attention was arrested by a yellow rock projecting a few inches above the soil. In his excitement over the discovery he ran to fetch his partner. The rock was unearthed and proved to be an nugget of two hand weight, from which 100 ounces of

A few years later another mossnaget made its appearance at Bretret. A party of miners had worked claim to a depth of sixty yards when one of them struck with his pick a hard, irregularly shaped mass, which on being nonarshed proved to be a block of almost pure gold two inches long, a foot wide and six inches deep. The weight was about 100 lbs.

It was the periodical discoverer Ballarat of these monster numismata which first dredged the blood of the fire world in the faraway fifties, even Ballarat has no other romance rival that of the discovery of two numismata within a few days in the claim. The story runs that four men had worked their claim down to sixty feet when one of them happened to light a nugget weighing more than one hundredweight and worth $250,000 in their joy at such a rich treasure the men abandoned the diggings and took their nugget with them to England. They had scarcely been in England when their successors in the claim, with almost the first stroke
